2. Purpose of data processing, legal basis, storage period, recipients and third country transfer

Depending on the purpose of the processing, your data may be processed on a different legal basis. When operating our website, we are partly supported by order processors who process your data on our behalf and on our instructions and are thus recipients of your data ("service providers"). In addition, your data may also be disclosed to other companies.

In the following, we name the different purposes for which your data may be processed on our website, stating the relevant legal basis as well as an indication of the storage period. We will also tell you whether this company is a service provider and whether any transfer of your data will take place outside the European Economic Area ("EEA").

a. Calling our website and log file

In order to display our website on your device, it is technically necessary for our web server, on which our website is hosted, to process data from you. For this purpose, we process your IP address together with information about your browser type and the version used, your operating system, your internet service provider, the date and time of your access, the internet page from which you accessed our website and the sub-websites you accessed in a server log file. A service provider assists us with hosting.

Your data is processed in accordance with Art. 6 Para. 1 lit. f) DSGVO. The processing of your IP address is necessary to protect our legitimate interests in the accessibility and correct presentation of our website. The additional storage of your data in a server log file serves to protect our legitimate interests in operating our website securely and without errors and in being able to detect, limit and eliminate faults and errors.

Your data in our server log file will be automatically deleted 7 days after visiting our website.

b. Contact

On our website, we give you the opportunity to contact us on various topics.

If you contact us using our contact form, the mandatory information you must provide is marked as such. This information is required in order to process your enquiry. All other information is voluntary and only serves to answer your enquiry more precisely. You can also contact us by telephone, e-mail, post or fax. The data we process from you in this context may vary depending on the communication channel, but will regularly include your first and last name, address, telephone number, e-mail address and fax number.

If your contact is directed towards the conclusion of a contract or is in connection with a contract, we process your data on the basis of Art. 6 para. 1 lit. b) DSGVO. If your contact is of a general nature, we process your data in accordance with Art. 6 para. 1 lit. f) DSGVO on the basis of our legitimate interests in answering your enquiry about our company and/or our offers individually and in the best possible way.

We delete your data, if it is related to a contractual relationship, only after the expiry of retention periods under commercial or tax law, which can be up to 6 years. These periods regularly begin at the end of the year in which you contacted us. We delete all other data when your enquiry has been finally clarified and we are not subject to any legal obligation to retain the corresponding data.

c. Newsletter

If you register for our newsletter on our website, we process your e-mail address as the only mandatory information. We need this for sending the newsletter. The provision of further data is voluntary.

The legal basis for the data processing associated with the dispatch of the newsletter is Art. 6 para. 1 lit. f) DSGVO. We have a legitimate economic interest in using the consent you have given us to receive the newsletter in accordance with Section 7 (2) of the German Unfair Competition Act (UWG) in order to be able to address you directly in this way and to inform you about our group of companies.

In addition, we analyse your reading behaviour with regard to the newsletter by means of a so-called "pixel", which is downloaded when the newsletter is opened. In order to retrieve the pixel, it is necessary to process your IP address and information about your browser and system. By using the pixel, it is possible for us to know whether you have opened the newsletter, when you opened it and which links you have clicked.

The analysis of your usage behaviour of our newsletter is based on Art. 6 para. 1 lit a) DSGVO. We delete your data processed by us in connection with the sending of our newsletter upon revocation of your consent to receive the newsletter, but not before the expiry of statutory limitation periods in connection with the sending of the newsletter.

We are supported in the provision of our newsletter by a service provider who is based in the EEA.

e. Technically necessary cookies

Cookies are small files that are sent by us to the browser of your terminal device during your visit to our website and stored there. On our website, we use technically necessary cookies to ensure the basic functions of our website. The cookies contain a so-called session ID, with which various requests from your terminal device during your visit to our website can be assigned.

The legal basis for the associated processing of your data is Art. 6 para. 1 lit. f) DSGVO. The use of technically necessary cookies is necessary to protect our legitimate interests in the retrievability, correct presentation and ensuring the full functionality of our website.

Technically necessary cookies are deleted at the latest after you have closed the browser you are using.

If you do not wish cookies to be set on your end device, you can control this centrally via the browser you are using. You can also delete cookies via your browser.

However, blocking or deleting cookies may result in the usability of our website being noticeably restricted for you.

f. Consent management

We also use technically non-essential cookies on our website. When you first visit our website, we ask you for your consent to the use of such services. To manage your consent, i.e. whether you have given or refused consent, we store corresponding data in a cookie on your terminal device so that we can recognise you when you visit our website again and do not ask for consent again. In doing so, we process your IP address, the time of your visit to our website as well as information about your browser and your terminal device.

The associated processing of your data is based on Art. 6 para. 1 lit. f) DSGVO and serves our legitimate interest in enabling you to use our website as pleasantly as possible.

The cookie has a lifespan of one year, unless you delete it in your browser beforehand.

g. Google Analytics

We use the Google Analytics tool of Google Ireland Limited, Gordon House, 4 Barrow St, Dublin, D04 E5W5, Ireland ("Google Ireland") on our website.

Google Analytics enables us to analyse and evaluate the use of our website in order to compile reports on the website activities of our visitors based on this information. Google Analytics also creates pseudonymised usage profiles of website visitors. Through the use of Google Analytics, technically non-essential cookies as well as online identifiers (including cookie identifiers), IP addresses and your device identifiers are used. We use Google Analytics exclusively with the "Anonymize-IP" extension, which deletes part of your IP address before it is transmitted to Google Ireland. Google Ireland is a service provider in the context of the use of Google Analytics.

The use of Google Analytics is based on your consent given to us in accordance with Art. 6 (1) a) DSGVO.

The information collected through the use of Google Analytics is deleted after 9 or 18 months(<https://policies.google.com/technologies/ads>). When Google Analytics is used, Google Ireland acts as a service provider. We have therefore concluded an order processing agreement with Google Ireland, which also covers Google Analytics and can be accessed via the following link: <https://privacy.google.com/businesses/processorterms/>. Due to the case law of the European Court of Justice, in particular in the case C-40/17 - Fashion ID, we are prepared to conclude a joint responsibility agreement with Google Ireland pursuant to Art. 26 DSGVO. Such a contract is currently not provided by Google Ireland.

The use of Google Analytics results in a transfer of your data to the USA. The European Commission has not issued an adequacy decision for data transfers to the USA. However, part of the contract for commissioned processing concluded between us and Google Ireland are the so-called standard contractual clauses, which constitute a suitable guarantee for a third country transfer in accordance with Art. 46 (1), (2) (c) DSGVO.

You can prevent the transfer of data to Google Ireland by downloading and installing the browser plugin available at the following link: <http://tools.google.com/dlpage/gaoptout?hl=de>.

On our website we use a YouTube iframe provided by Google Ireland Limited, Gordon House, 4 Barrow St, Dublin, D04 E5W5, Ireland ("Google Ireland").

We have embedded the YouTube iframe in order to enable you to play videos on our website that we have selected and that are hosted on YouTube. In the process, your IP address is also transmitted to YouTube. Each time you visit a sub-page of our website on which a YouTube iframe is used, YouTube can track that you have visited this sub-page. If you are logged in to YouTube at the same time, the information collected is assigned to your Google account. You can only prevent this by logging out of YouTube.

The use of YouTube is based on Art. 6 para. 1 lit. f) DSGVO and serves our legitimate interests in an appropriate company presentation.

We do not know how Google handles your data, in particular whether there is a transfer of your data to a country outside the EEA. General information on the processing of your data by Google can be found in the Google privacy policy: <https://policies.google.com/privacy>.

We use the "Activate extended data protection mode" setting so that Google does not set any cookies to analyse user behaviour when embedding the videos.

The use of Google reCAPTCHA is based on Art. 6 para. 1 lit. f) DSGVO and serves our legitimate interests in ensuring the trouble-free operation of our website.

By using Google reCAPTCHA, Google Ireland collects data about you and sets cookies on your terminal device. Further details on how Google reCAPTCHA works can be found on the following page: <https://www.google.com/recaptcha/about/>.

We use the Google Fonts service of Google Ireland Limited, Gordon House, 4 Barrow St, Dublin, D04 E5W5, Ireland ("Google Ireland") on our website.

Using Google Fonts, we can embed and display fonts on our website that Google Ireland makes available on its own servers. When you visit our website, your browser reloads the fonts we have embedded in order to display them on our website. For this purpose, your browser connects to Google's servers and your IP address is processed in this way. According to Google Ireland's own representation, no cookies are set on your terminal device through the use of Google Fonts (https://developers.google.com/fonts/faq#what_does_using_the_google_fonts_api_mean_for_the_privacy_of_my_users).
